

After three years of snubs & misses, The Academy of Television Arts & Sciences finally got it right this season and awarded the über-talented Tatiana Maslany with her first Primetime Emmy Award for Outstanding Lead Actress in a Drama Series. The beloved Orphan Black star recently sat down with Fashion Magazine to chat about a handful of topics, including two of her upcoming film roles: Lucy in Two Lovers and a Bear, where she stars alongside Dane DeHaan (The Amazing Spider-Man 2), and then Erin Hurley in the David Gordon Green-directed Boston Marathon movie Stronger, where she'll be seen opposite Academy Award-nominee Jake Gyllenhaal (Nocturnal Animals). She also detailed her process behind getting into her various different clone characters and described the first time she ever attempted to become Helena: "When I first saw myself dressed as Helena in the mirror—I had these red eyes and I was wearing a huge Twisted Sister wig—I knew immediately who she was, There's something so 'othered' about her—so not part of conventional society. I needed to tap
