

In an interview with Back Stage the young and talented actress describes her audition for Evil Dead as "crazy." She decided to go for broke and based on the results her instinct were right on the money. "I went in there deciding to go as crazy as I possibly could—why not let it all go? Let's have an experiment to really let go in an audition. So I was like this lunatic, stomping around and crying and screaming. And immediately after I finished, I got so embarrassed and I practically ran out of the room. And then I was embarrassed that I got embarrassed. I asked my agent to call the casting directors and apologize for my behavior. But it turned out I got the part. I guess they were looking for a crazy person." She also reveals her decision to not see the original Evil Dead. Believing that it could have a

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/nailbiter111/news/?a=60525>