

I shared a snippet from this interview with you guys last week because Clark's response to my spoiler-ish inquires were just too funny for me to keep to myself. As I previously stated, Clark is currently starring in Ethan Coen's (No Country For Old Men) Off-Broadway play, Happy Hour but was gracious enough to make time for a chat with me. I was pleasantly surprised to learn that just like Kristain Nairn (Game of Thrones) he's a fan of CBM and often visits the site. Here's the full interview where we discuss his importance to Marvel's continuity, what Agent Coulson gets up to in The Avengers, where he stands between Nick Fury (Samuel L. Jackson) and Maria Hill (Cobie Smulders) and a certain rumor about Jeffrey Wright secretly visiting the Cleveland shoot. In addition to that, Gregg also says that he's currently in talks with Marvel to

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/GraphicCity/news/?a=50715&t=font_coloredEXCLUSIVEfont_Interview_With_Clark_Gregg_About_THE_AVENGERS_And_Future_MARVEL_Endeavors