

Despite being insanely busy writing countless titles for Marvel, writer Rob Williams was kind enough to take the time to talk to me about the many comic books he's been working on as of late. As you may notice, some of the questions below focus on titles which have already come out, but that is simply down to Rob only just now having managed to find the time to answer them! If you've missed any of the comics, I strongly advise hunting down the back issue or trades when they're available. To keep up to date with all of his work, you can find Rob on Twitter (@Robwilliams71) by clicking HERE. How exactly did you get into writing comic books for a living? I was writing and directing for a small video production company and that taught me to write with visuals in mind, albeit very dull visuals. It made me think maybe

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/joshw24/news/?a=47516&t=font\_color\_redEXCLUSIVEfont\_Interview\_With\_iGhost\_Rideri\_And\_iDark\_Wolverinei\_Writer\_Rob\_Williams