

"Been fan since I was a teen. It's such a great franchise." Do you think have an advantage over other actors for a superhero role like Black Panther because you are in such good shape? I'd love the opportunity to tackle the role. I keep myself In shape because I have always wanted to play a superhero and I always figured it was better to stay ready than to get ready. There's a lot of great choices for BP. I'd be honored to be in that group. And I'd apply laser focus to preparing for the role. Black Panther typically has a reserved personality in the comic books. Do you think you would try to give him a little more personality to make sure your performance stands out? I think every superhero needs personality. Especially in this day and age with all of the CGI. For the hero to stand out in this format he/she
