

Cinema Blend was in attendance for Sony's presentation of the first teaser trailer for Sam Mendes' Skyfall. They have a written extremely thorough description of what they have seen, and what they heard. And from what I've read of the material below, this movie IS going to be much darker than what most fans had suspected. The trailer begins with a shot of Bond (Daniel Craig) from behind looking at the city of London. Then we hear someone in a voice-over say the word "Country" and Bond saying, "England." It seems he is playing some sort of word association game. We then hear the mystery voice say "Gun" and Bond replies "Shot" as we view a target at the end of a shooting range. We then see that 007 is in an interrogation room where he is being asked the questions and being watched by Ralph Fiennes and some other

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/nailbiter111/news/?a=58608>