

I'm a sucker for cool art based on comic book characters and I wish I had the space and money to support these talented people. Not to mention, they would just look really cool on my wall. Anyways, the latest comic book art I've come across, via the X-Men facebook page, is by Danny Haas, who has taken a different approach, showing off bot the comic book characters, as well as their alter ego and has done it with a cool vintage look. Below are just a few of his pieces, but you can also find Green Lantern, Iron Man and a few other comic book/sci-fi characters, including Batman, Star Wars and many others. These are also available for purchase via the link above. Be sure to check out the link to see his other stuff!
