

With Stan "The Man" Lee set to appear at a UK convention for the first time in nearly 40 years, I've been scouring eBay for a worthy comic book to get signed by the legendary creator. I have a few decent ones here I could take, but no REAL classics. Then I came across an 8.5 CGC graded copy of The Amazing Spider-Man #9 - the first appearance of my second favourite Spidey villain, Electro. How much? A whopping £1,250 (which is just under $2,000)! Now, I love comic books, and I REALLY love Spider-Man, but I just couldn't bring myself to spend such a crazy amount despite the fanboy inside of me pretty much begging for it. Anyway, this got me thinking. What's the most expensive comic book you own? Regardless of whether it's one you've had in your collection for years or an expensive purchase you've made recently, I'd

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JoshWildingNewsAndReviews/news/?a=52494&t=FEATURE_Whats_The_Most_Valuable_Comic_Book_You_Own