

Are you excited for the upcoming DC TV crossover? Of course you are, but this new promo released by The CW this evening will have you counting down the seconds. Offering up a first look at the villainous Dominators, there are lots of cool reveals here. Among them are the return of Deathstroke, a team-up between The Flash and Supergirl, and brand new costumes for heroes like Citizen Steel and Wild Dog. Taking place over four nights, this event promises to be the biggest thing The CW has ever done, and it appears as if they've spent a lot of money on it. There's still an awful lot we don't really know about it (will Superman swoop in to lend a hand?), but it's clear that the crossover will be something special, and even those of you who don't regularly watch the shows may want to consider giving it a chance!
