

Spartacus star Jai Courtney is playing Jack McClane, the son of John McClane (Bruce Willis) and he spoke with Entertainment Weekly about the upcoming film. While he wasn't forthcoming about the villains in the movie, he did have this to say: "That's the thing about the Die Hard franchise, John's always a fish out of water. What could be further out of water for him than Russia?... The relationship isn't always functional. These are two guys who have been estranged for some time. John likes to wing it, see what happens. Jack's more of a strategist." A Good Day to Die Hard puts McClane on an international stage, truly a NYC fish out of water in Moscow, and introduces his estranged son Jack (Jai Courtney). An apple that has not fallen far from the tree, Jack may even be more of a hardass than his father. Despite their differences, they must work together

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/nailbiter111/news/?a=68153>