

We've seen him in set photos, but Logan director James Mangold has now released a first look at a very battered Hugh Jackman as Wolverine in the movie. Rumours point to the hero's healing factor being on the blink when we meet up with him here, so that could explain why he's looking a little rougher than usual. Either way, he's definitely closer to Old Man Logan than in the X-Men movies! Meanwhile, Trailer Track points out that the Indian Twitter account for 20th Century Fox has confirmed that the first Logan teaser trailer will be released online tomorrow. It should be very interesting to see what it reveals after weeks of mysterious teases and photographs like the one below, but if anything has now become clear, it's that this will definitely be a Wolverine movie unlike any we've see before. Logan stars Hugh Jackman, Sienna Novikov, Boyd Holbrook, Richard E. Grant, Stephen Merchant, and Patrick Stewart. It's currently set to be released

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/x-men/the_wolverine/first-official-look-at-hugh-jackman-as-logan-revealed-first-a146140