

After the trailer debuts for both Transformers: The Last Knight and The Fate of the Furious, 2017 is really shaping up to be the year of betrayal as we saw both Optimus Prime and Dominic Toretto turn their backs on their respective families. Paramount Pictures & director Michael Bay have just released the first official teaser poster for the upcoming action sequel featuring the former leader of the Autobots, our hero-turned-villain, standing alone atop a rocky shore and looking down at the body of what looks to be Bumblebee. We also catch a look at a massive vessel in the background. Check out the poster in full hi-resolution below:  Transformers: The Last Knight is the upcoming fifth film in the live-action film series, currently expected to be released June 23, 2017. The film will serve as a sequel to Transformers: Age of Extinction, and once again be directed by Michael Bay. As with the previous films, it will be a Paramount Pictures production. Transformers: The

Read more: <https://www.comicbookmovie.com/transformers/first-official-poster-for-transformers-the-last-knight-asks-you-to-a147491>