

Video blogs seem to be the new rage. Peter Jackson has done as many as five for The Hobbit. His videos are stuffed with behind-the-scenes footage, and stories from the set, while this first outing from Sam Mendes is pretty flimsy in comparison. Jackson's blogs can be as much as fifteen minutes long, and 007's first one is not even two minutes long. But, it is nice to see a little glimpse of Daniel Craig as Bond, even if it's just for a few seconds. Enjoy! "I've made six movies and this is the first time I've shot in this country – which is an extraordinary thing. I feel like the American years were my apprenticeship for doing a Bond movie!" "I think it is still possible to make a big, entertaining, fabulous, glamorous movie and yet at the same time to say something about the world that we're living in." "The roots of
