

Screen Rant have unearthed what may just be the first teaser poster for The Wolverine. Posted on Instragram, the picture (which the site have cleared up a little) was apparently taken in the offices of director James Mangold and clearly depicts a Japanese flag being sliced by Wolverine's claws. With production not scheduled to begin until Fall, it does seem a little early for a teaser poster. However, it's not as if this was released officially! They've contacted Fox for some sort of confirmation about its validity, so stay tuned for any further details. If it is fan made, it's a damn good effort! What do you guys think? Sound off with your thoughts in the usual place.

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JoshWildingNewsAndReviews/news/?a=56699>