

A member of Reddit, geekRAT, was one of the lucky few that was able to view M. Night Shyamalan's new sci-fi film, After Earth. The film stars Will Smith and his son Jaden, but if the review is accurate I should actually say the film stars Jaden; and his father is merely a co-star. About the Movie: It was a fun science fiction movie that is meant for a teenage audience. The environments are great to look, I'm not talking Avatar quality but the rough scenes that I saw were very pleasing. The story is a nice mix of a survival/scifi/monster movie with a "coming of age" dusting on top. Will Smith is in a supporting role and Jaden has the majority of the screen time. I don't want to spoil too much so if you would like to know specifics about the plot or Shyamalan just ask me. About the Process:
