

It's well known NBC passed on the pilot for David E. Kelley's Wonder Woman television series, due to the pilot not "fitting particularly well with their schedule." While the pilot itself was praised, IFanboy has gotten their hands on it. And further praising it in their review, despite lacking special-effects, & also unveiling screenshots, check out what they had to say. As Wonder Woman/Diana Themyscira/Diana Prince, Adrienne Palicki was a revelation. I was already a big fan of hers from Friday Night Lights but here she takes center stage and pulls off what is an extremely difficult role. She's tough, she's charming, she's sexy, she's vulnerable, and she's got a little bit of an angry edge to her when she's Wonder Woman that adds just a dash of exciting unpredictability. This could have been a star making turn for Padlicki who certainly deserves one. The Wonder Woman on this show is a

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/MarvelFreshman/news/?a=38312&:t=First_Review_New_Stills_Revealed_For_NBCs_Cancelled-iWonder_Womani_Pilot