

Not too much is known about Darren Aronofsky's take on the biblical journey of Noah. For the moment we're only aware of the fact that Russel Crow is set to portray the biblical patriarch in modernized Mad-Max style, the film will be based on the comic book, rather than the bible, and that Anthony Hopkins and Ray Winstone have also joined the cast. However, the director was generous enough to give us our first look at what seems to be Noah's boat. One thing's for sure, the Jaw's quote "We're gonna need a bigger boat" doesn't seem to apply here! His name is Noah. Far from the stereotype of the patriarch that one appends the character of the Bible, he looked like a warrior. He looks like a Mad Max out of the depths of time. In the world of Noah, pity has no place. He lives with his wife and

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/CoastToCoastStation/news/?a=63550>