

Just before the penultimate episode of Westworld aired last night, HBO debuted a "Coming in 2017" preview, which contained the first official shots from Game of Thrones season 7. Though the video itself is not online yet, thanks to Watchers on The Wall we do have some screencaps. The first character we glimpse is Sansa Stark (Sophie Turner), as she stands in the Godswood of Winterfell with a surprised look on her face. Could this be because she's just spied her long-lost sister Arya (Maisie Williams) approaching? The two are rumoured to reunite this season, and we do also get a shot of the youngest Stark girl on horseback sporting clothes from her winter collection. Finally, we get a look at Jon Snow (Kit Harington), who appears to be dressed for battle. Is this his final meeting with Sansa before he heads south to meet with Dany and co.? All speculation of course, so be sure to share your own theories in the

Read more: <https://www.comicbookmovie.com/fantasy/first-shots-from-game-of-thrones-season-7-are-featured-in-hbos-coming-in-a147109>