

HeyUGuys, Digital Spy, Den Of Geek and WhatCulture! have posted their reviews for the anticipated fantasy epic Snow White And The Huntsman, which hits theaters this Friday. All four websites give the film a positive verdict, with HUG being the most positive. Both WC and HUG compare the dark/gritty tone to Christopher Nolan's movies. Below are segments from all four reviews: The film's biggest issue is the lack of a sense of fun. It's so po-faced that at times I half expected Christopher Nolan's name to turn up somewhere in the end credits. The few comic moments are great, and a pleasant relief, but there simply aren't enough of them, and the film suffers from it. In particular, there are times where it's very hard to stay engaged with the movie, particularly when Snow White and her pet Huntsman are simply blundering around the countryside aimlessly. That said, the film

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/BatFreak/news/?a=60575>