

What is real? That seems to be the big question on everyone's mind (especially David Haller's) as we swiftly approach the premiere date for FX's Legion. The latest batch of promos for the upcoming X-Men spin-off series features Dan Stevens (Beauty and the Beast) as David Haller in a therapy session where he begins to question whether everything he's seeing - including himself - is real or not. We also catch sessions with David's sister Amy, played by Katie Aselton (The League), and one with the alluring Syd, played by Rachel Keller (Fargo), who seems to have some major issues of her own. Check out the four new promos below:

Legion, based on the Marvel Comics by Chris Claremont and Bill Sienkiewicz, is the story of David Haller (Dan Stevens) – a troubled young man who may be more than human.

Diagnosed as schizophrenic as a child, David has been in and out of psychiatric hospitals for years. Now in his early 30s and institutionalized once again,

Read more: <https://www.comicbookmovie.com/tv/marvel/legion/four-therapeutic-new-promos-for-legion-have-david-haller-friends-a148019>