

Last week, a handful of screengrabs from the Marvel Phase 3 sneak peek found their way online, but now, the whole video has surfaced. As you can see below, it features interviews with pretty much everyone involved with the movies coming out in the next few years, including Black Panther's Ryan Coogler and Thor: Ragnarok's Taika Waititi. Notable by his absence? Spider-Man. On the plus side, the video provides a fresh look at Thanos, even more of Wakanda, and some early visual effects footage of Thor and The Hulk going to war with each other. That in particular is very cool, and the finished product promises to be mind-blowing if this is any indication! Guardians of the Galaxy Vol. 2 is obviously next up for Marvel, with Spider-Man: Homecoming and Thor: Ragnarok's following later in the year. Throw in the fact that these Phase 3 movies are in various stages of development and we can expect to see much more than what's in

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/avengers/avengers_infinity_war/full-marvel-phase-3-sneak-peek-shows-off-black-a149088