

The Marvel Cinematic Universe just got even more awesome. Variety reveals that Game of Thrones star Peter Dinklage is in early talks to take on what they describe as a "key role" in Avengers: Infinity War and the untitled fourth instalment. Directed by The Russo Brothers, the movies are shooting back to back, so actors showing up in both makes sense, especially with them likely set to tell one big story. With Game of Thrones switching up its production schedule as HBO waits for winter and reduces the number of remaining episodes, that's left a gap in the actor's schedule to join the MCU this summer. Character details are currently unknown, but there are a lot of interesting possibilities. If Adam Warlock is going to show up in Avengers: Infinity War, Pip is one possibility, while some fans are already wondering if Dinklage could play M.O.D.O.K.! We'll have to wait and see, but after he was so poorly handled as Bolivar Trask in

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/avengers/avengers\_infinity\_war/game-of-thrones-star-peter-dinklage-in-talks-for-a148105