

MTV caught up with Gary Oldman at the Gotham Awards where they asked him about his lack of a Gordon mustache. Oldman said he has retired the mustache and that he was even presented a display with his badge, glasses, and mustache to commemorate his time working on the Batman films. He also said that the Gordon we see in The Dark Knight Rises is resistant of the Gordon we see in Batman Begins saying he is very world weary. Movie Trailers - Movies Blog Via MTV On the lack of his Jim Gordon Mustache at the awards: "The Gordon mustache is retired. They gave me a shadow box and it had in it my badge, my glasses, and a mustache. And he(Gordon) is retired." On the mind set of Gordon in The Dark Knight Rises: He is a little reminiscent of the Gordon you see in Batman Begins. They have tidied up the city, but there

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JakeLester/news/?a=50452&t=Gary_Oldman_Talks_About_Retiring_Jim_Gordon_And_The_Direction_The_Character_Is_Going_In_The_Dark_Knight_Rises