

In a huge interview with Collider Geoff Johns talked in detail about some of the finer details and surprises we can expect to see in Green Lantern. For the full version (which also includes some fascinating insights from producer Donald De Line, production designer Grant Major and costume designer Ngila Dickson, click on the link below. Has it been determined if the rings will speak in the film? The rings will not speak. How will members of the corps know when their personal battery is low? Will there be a way that the ring will communicate with them? Yeah. But not through speech? Will it be visualized? Yeah. We saw it blinking when it was time for the hologram. Yeah. Are you guys trying to set a base of look with the Green Lantern? Is there an idea or aesthetic that you want to set up for future DC films?
