

Cameras began rolling on Star Trek: Discovery last week, and CBS All Access has released our very first behind-the-scenes look at the upcoming small screen return to the final frontier. Though none of the main cast are featured, we do get a few intriguing glimpses of some ship concept designs, alien makeup, a brief hint at how the new uniforms will look, and finally a shot of the redesigned captain's chair. Check out the video along with an official press release below: Star Trek, one of the most iconic and influential global television franchises, returns to television 50 years after it first premiered with STAR TREK: DISCOVERY. The series will feature a new ship, new characters and new missions, while embracing the same ideology and hope for the future that inspired a generation of dreamers and doers. The series will premiere on the CBS Television Network with all subsequent episodes available on CBS All Access, the Network's digital subscription video on demand and
