

Right from the beginning everyone involved with Ghost Rider: Spirit Of Vengeance seemed adamant to distance it from the first movie by claiming that it was not a sequel. It featured the same character, played by the same actor, and took place after the events of the last movie..but not a sequel. Gotacha. While speaking to Total Film Nicholas Cage continues to perpetuate this.. "I don't see this as a sequel at all. I see this as Ghost Rider: Spirit Of Vengeance. The other movie was Ghost Rider. This movie is Ghost Rider: Spirit Of Vengeance." Well, I'm sold. I mean who can argue with that logic? Cage also explains how Ghost Rider differs from other superheroes and why he is attracted to roles like this one.. "Johnny Blaze is in a much different place in this movie, It's a much edgier, almost cynical interpretation compared to the first Ghost Rider. Because in that

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/rorschachsrrants/news/?a=53068&t=GHOST_RIDER_SOV_Nicholas_Cage_On_Playing_Johnny_Blaze_Still_Says_Its_Definitely_NOT_A_Sequel