

Aykroyd talks Ghostbusters at WNY event: wivb.com "We've got a new writing staff working on it now," Aykroyd said. "It's got to be prefect. That's the whole thing. There's no point in doing it unless it's perfect. So that's what we're up to now." Okay, where did we leave off? Oh right, Bill Murray was on David Letterman's "hilarious" talk show and said that he would be open to making a third Ghostbusters film, but so far the scripts haven't been up to snuff. Alright, so today Dan Aykroyd has confirmed that a new writing staff working on the project, but no details were given. The last writers to work on the script were Lee Eisenberg and Gene Stupnitsky, who co-wrote Jack Black's dud Year One and Cameron Diaz's Bad Teacher.
