

Let's face it, nobody has much faith in the still untitled G.I Joe sequel. The first one was bad enough, but with a new director in John Chu and many of the original cast and characters not returning I think even the handful of fans that enjoyed the first one must be facepalming. But, lets focus on the positives if we can. The movie appears to be getting a few new characters at least. And one of them is a dude named "Cross".. 'Cross', described to agents as being 'Male; 25-35 years old; any ethnicity; a soldier.' Now I'm not too familiar with the Joe cartoons and comics etc but Clint over at Moviehole (who have the exclusive) reckons this must be Cross-Country, a popular character introduced back in 1986. I'm sure you Joe fans know the guy, would he make a good addition to the sequel's roster?

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/rorschachsrrants/news/?a=34508&t=iGl_Joe_2i_Adds_A_Character_Named_Cross