

It's November 1st, so we can finally say that Rogue One: A Star Wars Story will be released next month! Gillette has partnered up with Disney/Lucasfilm for the "Every Story Has a Face" campaign, and as you can see below, that includes a very cool commercial incorporating never before seen snippets of footage from the highly anticipated release which also puts the spotlight on some unknown faces. According to the press release from Gillette (via Superhero News), "As Rogue One features the story behind the brave Rebels, Gillette's story is about the power behind each and every guy's face as he prepares for the challenges of the day. There is power in the look guys choose to craft because, when everything else is stripped away, the face is how each and every guy communicates his story." The campaign will feature some of the most iconic assets from both worlds, including one of a kind, special edition Rogue One: A Star Wars Story Special
