

THR report that the CW are moving forward with the new Green Arrow Tv show. Not many details were known about the show except that it would definitely not be a Smallville spin off (no Justin Hartely) and that Green Lantern duo Marc Guggenheim and Greg Berlanti would produce. New info reveals that the story will be a "modern retelling" (take from that what you will) and that the pilot at least appears to have a director.. Arrow, based on DC Comics' long-running Green Arrow, revolves around the hooded super hero, a wealthy playboy by day who secretly saves the city by night using his enhanced arrows. The hourlong drama is a modern retelling of the legendary comics character and hails from Green Lantern duo Greg Berlanti and Marc Guggenheim. Apparently David Nutter is "expected" to direct. The CW also ordered a pilot for the rebooted Beauty And The Beast - which will be

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/rorschachsrants/news/?a=53040&t=GREEN_ARROW_Pilot_A_Go_At_CW_Title_Shortened_To_ARROW