

I bet you've been wondering why we haven't seem any reviews for Warner Bros. and Martin Campbell's upcoming comic book adaptation Green Lantern starring Ryan Reynolds, Mark Strong and Blake Lively. That's because all reviews are embargoed until June 16. Yes, no reviews until only one day before the film is released. In many cases this is definitely not a good sign and who knows what are the reasons for doing that. This could change, but it won't matter that much since the film is coming out this week. Plus, I came across this report over at The Motley Fool (Investing Community), about the recent tracking for upcoming films. They go into details about superhero adaptations and their box-office success. One of the things they said about Green Lantern is this: "A successful debut for Green Lantern would give DC the credibility needed to build franchises around other Justice League names. What would

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/Wolvie09/news/?a=39343&t=iGreen\_Lantern\_Is\_Tracking\_For\_60M\_Opening\_Weekend\_Reviews\_Embargoed\_Until\_June\_16