

Marvel Studios is just around seventeen months away from redefining the modern comic book movie as we know it with the arrival of Avengers: Infinity War, which is expected to assemble an unprecedented amount of heroes on-screen for a movie event so big, it needed a second part to fully tell its story. Production on the highly anticipated film began last Monday and while it hasn't been officially announced by the studio, a handful of Marvel's biggest stars should have already touched down in Atlanta over the past week as they prepare for the nearly year-long shoot, which will see both Infinity War and the untitled Avengers 4 shoot back-to-back. Earlier today, one of the Marvel Cinematic Universe's newest inductees, Pom Klementieff, who will make her debut later this year in James Gunn's Guardians of the Galaxy, Vol. 2 more or less confirmed her involvement in the upcoming Russo Brothers-directed feature by posting an image of herself in Atlanta sporting a beanie with the new Infinity

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/avengers/avengers_infinity_war/guardians-of-the-galaxy-vol-2-actress-pom-a148518