

Director Guillermo del Toro (best known for directing the Hellboy films, Pan's Labyrinth and Blade 2) was recently promoting his upcoming science fiction film Pacific Rim at San Diego Comic-Con. Some footage from the film, which is described as a homage to the Kaiju genre, was shown, and was received extremely positively by those who were present. Many were wondering when we would see a debut trailer for the movie, and in an interview with Collider, del Toro reveals that the first trailer for Pacific Rim may be released in November or December of this year. Also in the following segment from Collider's interview (the site will be posting a part of the hour long interview each day), del Toro discusses the Hall H presentation at San Diego Comic-Con, how he became involved with the project, the creative freedom that he had, working with Legendary Pictures, and much more. Watch

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/BatFreak/news/?a=64860>