

Marvel and IMAX are expected to make some big casting announcements for The Inhumans any week now, but the first may have already been revealed on Twitter of all places! As you can see below, Roel Reine, the director of the first two episodes shared a photo of an IMAX camera test. That's not particularly revealing, but it did get a pretty interesting response from Arrow alum Elysia Rotaru. While it's possible that she's just a huge fan of Reine or Marvel, this Tweet does seem to indicate that she's involved in some way, and speculation about her involvement is now running rampant online. Rotaru played Taiana on several episodes of Arrow last season in the show's flashbacks, and she certainly looks the part of someone like Medusa! For the time being, it's important to note that nothing has been confirmed, but casting news has been revealed in stranger ways than this. Do you think the actress has landed a role in The Inhumans? If so,

Read more: <https://www.comicbookmovie.com/inhumans/has-arrow-star-elysia-rotaru-joined-the-cast-of-marvels-the-inhumans-a148552>