

In what I consider to be a hugely disheartening couple of tweets, David Slade (the man Fox chose to helm their Daredevil reboot) has informed everyone that not only is the Daredevil reboot ways away from being made, but that he seems to be lacking energy for the movie. I am clueless as to why the Daredevil reboot is being neglected by Fox as much as it is. Also, David Slade said Daredevil news was coming up in the new year (this was back in 2011) but that did not come about. One has to wonder whether Slade will still be attached to this project when all is said and done. Maybe Slade lacks passion for the character, or Fox could be pulling some ominous strings. I know the situation with the movie rights can be confusing, but I believed Fox had up to 2012 to begin production or else the

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/eyegloo/news/?a=58049>