

Chances are that we won't get any Star Wars Episode VIII details until after the spotlight has been taken off Rogue One: A Star Wars Story, but AVS Forum has come across a very interesting trademark filing which may very well reveal the movie's title. Chances are that Disney and Lucasfilm are a little more careful than this, but it was submitted today to European Union Intellectual Property Office and covers a lot of different items. In fact, that list is over 2000 words and covers everything from toys to clothing. So, what is the title they've registered? Star Wars: Forces of Destiny. It's a title which certainly fits after The Force Awakens, and with Rogue One right around the corner, the timing is definitely interesting. For now, it's obviously best to take this with a pinch of salt, but what do you guys think about this title? Directed by Rian Johnson, Star Wars Episode VIII stars Mark Hamill, Carrie Fisher, Adam Driver, Daisy

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/scifi_movies/star_wars/has-the-title-of-star-wars-episode-viii-finally-been-a147440