

Henry Cavill, the new "Man Of Steel" for Zach Synder's upcoming Superman reboot, recently visited the Mattel toy factory and was stunned at the fact that he will be transformed into a little plastic figure. Find out below what he had to say! "I met the guy who is making the action figures the other day, and it was an absolutely wonderful experience, but I was absolutely stunned by the whole experience, too [...] I was shaking hands with a guy who is making a toy out of me. I don't think there's any shame in being really excited about it. It's mega-weird, but as long as you don't get too wrapped up in it, it's great. And you know, I don't want it to end." Clark Kent is a journalist in his twenties who was adopted as a child by Martha and Jonathan Kent when he was transported to Earth from the

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/CoastToCoastStation/news/?a=49643&t=Henry_Cavill_Share_His_Thoughts_On_Turning_Into_An_Action_Figure_For_iMan_Of_Steeli