

On the unprecedented success of Marvel's The Avengers and how no one was predicting such a huge financial windfall [except for Intruder]--- Stan Lee: Oh, I could have told everybody it was going to be this big of a hit! I don't know why they couldn't have predicted it. It couldn't miss! It's got some of the most popular characters in the world today. You put together a great script, a great director, great actors and a cameo by me -- how could it miss? In response to the notion that he's receiving a portion of the billion dollar box office total--- Lee: I hate to admit this, but I do not share in the movie's profits. I just share in the interviews, in the glamour, in the people saying, "Wow, I love that movie, Stan" -- but I'm not a participant in the profits. But Lee is listed as an Executive Producer. Surely
