

Cineuropa (via Twitch Film) reports that Timo Vuorensola - who recently directed the sci-fi flick Iron Sky, which was released in various European countries earlier this year - is set to direct an adaptation for I Killed Adolf Hitler, a graphic novel by Norwegian cartoonist Jason (otherwise known as John Arne Sæterøy). The story follows an assassin who attempts to kill Nazi leader Adolf Hitler, but ends up being stuck in 1939 while Hitler sends himself into the present. With a script written by DC Walker, the film will be produced by London's Studio Eight, Finland's Blind Spot Pictures and Germany's Niama Film. Production is expected to begin in 2013. Many thanks to Collider for the heads up. Below is a plot summary of the graphic novel: In this full-color graphic novel, Jason posits a strange, violent world in which contract killers can be hired to rub out pests, be they dysfunctional

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/BatFreak/news/?a=60422>