

Released to mixed reviews, Immortals managed to earn an impressive $1.3 million at 1,024 midnight showings. This just about tops the amount taken by Rise of the Planet of the Apes back in August and easily bests the $700,000 earned by Battle: Los Angeles in its debut. Today, the movie opens in 3,100 locations and is expected to have a strong opening. It faces competition from Jack and Jill, Puss in Boots and may even be dealt a small blow by Clint Eastwood's J. Edgar. The site mention that Immortals, which stars Man of Steel's Henry Cavill as well as Mickey Rourke, Stephen Dorff, Freida Pinto and Luke Evans, has scored high at test screenings and also opened in a variety of international locations today. Relativity insiders reveal that Immortals only has to open to $25 million for the studio to be on a secure financial footing and tracking currently suggests $25

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/joshw24/news/?a=49717&t=ilmmortalsi> Opens Up To An Impressive 13 Million At Midnight Screenings