

Before you say it - I know, I know... There have been a lot of Tom interviews posted here over the last week or so. But while browsing the web looking for something to report on I found this extra long, extra brilliant interview from the round table at NYCC '11 with him.

DCMarvelFreshman posted this transcript of the interview a few days ago, but I thought it was worth sharing the video from the round table discussion. I think Tom really knows how to appeal to fans of comic book movies - we have had little bits here and there from Tom Hiddleston regarding Thor and The Avengers, but this interview uploaded by Poptimal.com is fantastic, if a little unprofessional in the beginning... Lots of detail on his approach and the difference between the two movies. Sit back for 25 minutes, put your feet up and enjoy this amazing interview.
