

Potential spoilers surrounding the production of Iron Man 3 should come as no surprise, especially with nearly a month of filming completed. And as it progresses, anonymous tipsters have shared with us details for an action scene that'll be shot this week, along with a scene already shot hinting at the inevitable "romance" in the movie. One tipster says that the production crew of Iron Man 3 have built- recreated the famous Grauman's Chinese Theater on Hollywood Boulevard over at the National Gypsum in Wilmington, North Carolina, where the bulk of filming takes place. The tipster goes on to say the scenes will involve combat of some sorts, with the extras in the scene being tourists; some costumed as "injured tourists". This night shoot will undergo Thursday & Friday. A permit for this very shoot was issued to Wilmington last week, where it states that three actors will be present,
