

Chatting in-depth with Schmoes Know, the president of 'Tony Stark' actor Robert Downey's Jr.'s production company, David Gambino, offered an update of Marvel Studios' forthcoming Iron Man 3 movie. Discussing the film's new direction, villain(s), and director Shane Black among other things, transcribed by the great RimBreaks, read on below! On the film's direction after The Avengers... "We're still in the early phases. Shane & Drew Pearce (second screenwriter) are working through the story outline & hopefully, at some point in August, Shane is going to start hammering keys & writing the script, but he has such a unique viewpoint on Tony Stark & I think his corky sensibility is going to be great for the series. It's going to feel, like a reinvention of what it can be as opposed to continuing the saga. What makes Shane a good writer is that he's such a very complex human being. He's got his

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/MarvelFreshman/news/?a=44498&:t=iron_Man_3i_Update_From_Robert_Downey_Jrs_Production_Company_President