

There are a lot of very exciting Marvel Studios movies on the way, but there's perhaps not a single one more highly anticipated than Avengers: Infinity War. We've heard conflicting reports about when shooting is supposed to start, but it now appears as if Joe and Anthony Russo are already hard at work on the movie which is being filmed back to back with the untitled fourth instalment in the franchise. According to photographer @AtlantaFilming (who has shared pictures from a number of Atlanta based productions, including Spider-Man: Homecoming), "I think I forgot to post this, but #AvengersInfinityWar started filming two weeks ago." We haven't had an official announcement from Marvel about that, but when he was asked if the filming he saw taking place could have been for another movie, he added: "I took photos of cast members last week. Just really far, sh*tty photos." Pushed for details, the photographer went on to say, "This is what I know: Some cast is here."
