

Sigourney Weaver played Dr. Grace Augustine, the leader of the AVTR (avatar) program in the 2009 blockbuster. She had a major role in the movie as she was at first the reluctant to embrace Sam Worthington's character, Jake Sully, but changed her view of him as she was able to use his friendship with Omaticaya clan to revisit the group. But things went south for her character when she opened fire on the Samson and was fatally wounded in the skirmish. Jake took her human form to the Tree of Souls with the hope that her soul could be transferred to her avatar form. She was too weak for the transfer to succeed. In her final moments, she told Jake that she was with Eywa. Sigourney is giving you the award tonight, and she's supposed to be in Avatar 2, despite her character dying in the first Avatar. Did I say she was
