

In development for roughly only nine months, it's no surprise the leading stars of Fox & Matthew Vaughn's X-Men: First Class prequel had concerns of how the film would turn out, during. But after viewing the final product, which has raving reviews, James McAvoy, Michael Fassbender & Kevin Bacon have revealed a sigh of relief, via Wenn. "I phoned Michael within a half hour (of seeing it) saying, 'Dude, you've got to see this movie really quick because you're gonna be relieved. You're gonna be able to go to the toilet again properly.'" "We were worried man because sometimes these things are a nightmare to make and it's well documented so there's no point in hiding out but it turned out really good. I think we always thought it could either be really different and really brilliant or really bad and really different." Bacon says, "I was completely knocked out and many people who

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/MarvelFreshman/news/?a=38019&:t=James McAvoy Kevin Bacon Reveal Initial Worries Of IX-Men First Class| Final Cut