

In this long interview with Comicus, James McAvoy talked about his involvement with X-Men: First Class, directed by Matthew Vaughn. He shared some info on the humans and mutants in the film, story, what will set this film apart from other comic book adaptations and more. Below is the part of this interview and for more just follow the link at the bottom of the page. Did you read the X-Men comics when you got the part? "It was largely based on the script because we do mess with a lot of the chronology of it all. Even with the other movies there are inconsistencies, you know. Where I took it from was the script, but also "X-Men: First Class" the comic, as well, even though it's utterly different from that comic. You have to lead from the script and then you start working on it when you come on board. We didn't

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/Wolvie09/news/?a=34988&t=James McAvoy Talks About The Story Of X-Men First Class Characters And More