

Speaking with FandangoMovies at this years CimnamaCon, Jason Momoa had quite a bit to say about the upcoming Conan:The Barbarian. He also made an almost unbelievable confession. So this is really your first big film role and you're taking over for someone thats pretty iconic The Governator, Arnold Schwarzenegger. So what does that feel like? Are you feeling a little pressure or are you excited? I'm excited. It's an honor. I mean I love Arnold, I love his movies and it's an absolute honor to take on those shoes. Having said that, the stories that I loved when I was a child, Robert E. Howard stories, to re tell those, just to re boot this franchise, it's exciting. Especially in the sense of James Bond or Batman there's a generation out there, it came out in 82, it's time for another generation to see it. It's an honor to be that guy.
So

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/GulfCoastAvengers/news/?a=35167&t=Jason_Momoa_Admits_He_Has_Not_Seen_Arnolds_iConanThe_Barbariani