

Jason Momoa has been detailing his experiences shooting Justice League on social media since the film commenced production, and his latest batch of Instagram pics give fans an idea of how he and the likes of Ben Affleck and Zack Snyder celebrated the end of shooting in Iceland. Nothing near as revealing as that Mera image of course, but it's nice to see the cast and crew having fun and enjoying a few classic Irish beverages. Unless Snyder has any other locations in mind for a few last-minute shots, this will likely be the last we see from Justice League for a while... at least as far as behind-the-scenes snaps go. Hopefully some more official images won't be too far off.

This man changed my life. I love you zack Mahalo for believing in me. It's Odin and Mano time.