

With production set to begin on James Wan's Aquaman this May, star Jason Momoa has been particularly outspoken with his excitement to make the first DCEU installment post-Justice League. In an interview with Digital Trends, Momoa praised the script for the film and the unique nature of the underwater setting, along with the action-adventure films it draws some influence from. “I read the (Aquaman) script and let me just put it this way, I’ve never seen a movie that’s anything like this. It’s going to be a world that you’ve never seen before, which is really cool. We went to space, we traveled all over different worlds, but we never went underwater. So it’s just a really cool spin on what’s below and it uses a lot of great movies that I already love — whether that be Raiders of the Lost Ark to Star Wars to Lord of the Rings to Romancing the Stone. It has a lot of really cool

Read more: <https://www.comicbookmovie.com/aquaman/jason-momoa-credits-justice-league-director-zack-snyder-with-the-vision-a148947>